SOUTH INDIAN FILTER COFFEE

(2kcal / 150ml)

KAAPI

Typically consumed in the southern states of India, Kaapi is a household drink. A strong decoction is obtained by infusing hot water with finely ground coffee over a couple of hours.

The decoction is made by boiling hot milk and a dash of natural sweeteners served in a traditional utensil called dabara.

POUROVER

(2kcal / 240ml)

The inverted conical pourover design allows the coffee to rise and enables the CO<sub>2</sub> release. The slow pour of water helps coffee release relevant flavour compounds at its own speed. Enjoy a perfect coffee bloom in this theatrical brewing session in a pure, natural and flavourful brew.

FULL BODIED,
MEDIUM ACIDITY
BREWING TIME:
2 MINUTES

FRENCH PRESS

(2kcal / 240ml)

In a French Press, the coffee is steeped in hot water for about 4 minutes. The ground coffee is fully in contact with water and hence they are able to release more flavour, body and acidity.

FULL BODIED,
PUREST FLAVOURS
BREWING TIME:

CHEMEX

(2kcal / 240ml)

Chemex filter paper absorbs the natural oils from coffee - a little bit of acidity, bitterness and off-notes. Chemex filter paper being thicker, absorbs more oils, thus giving us a lighter, cleaner cup of coffee. The brew is a liquid gold colour, that is perhaps the purest coffee flavour.

SIPHON

(2kcal / 240ml)

Reminiscent of a chemistry lab apparatus, there's a lot of precision and careful handling of coffee in this brewer. This is perhaps one of the rare coffee makers with a cloth filter that helps filter all sediments and gives us a cleaner and brighter cup than other brewers. Coffee in a siphon is brewed at 'almost' boiling temperature. While the brewing time is less, but high temperature helps bring out more pronounced flavors from coffee.

FULL BODIED,
NEUTRAL ACIDITY
BREWING TIME:
1-2 MINUTES
